WELCOME TO METRO BOSTON

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT, REPORTER

You've surely seen a service dog inside a store or restaurant. Or was it a therapy dog? Or maybe just a regular pet with a fake vest? Yes, that happens, and those who work to train service dogs think it's a dangerous practice. Some of those workers will be at the Massachusetts State House today to support a bill that hopes to end fake service dogs. Check out how it aims to do so and more local stories at metro.us/boston.

TRUMP REFUGEE BAN RULING PUT ON HOLD

I Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy on Monday put a temporarily hold on limits imposed by a lower court on President Donald Trump's order barring most refugees from entering the United States. Kennedy acted in response to the U.S. Justice Department's challenge to the part of a Thursday ruling by the San Francisco-based 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that would let refugees from around the world enter the country if they have a formal offer from a resettlement agency. Without Kennedy's intervention, the appeals court decision would have gone into effect on Tuesday. Kennedy's action gives the full Supreme Court time to consider the merits of the Trump administration's emergency request in full. Kennedy asked refugee ban challengers to file a response by noon on Tuesday.

ATTEMPT TO DEFLECT PROBES COULD BACKFIRE

2 Republican lawmaker Devin Nunes' investigation into whether Obama administration officials used classified intelligence reports to discredit Donald Trump's 2016 campaign team could backfire on the congressman — and the president, sources familiar with the reports said. The reports contain no evidence that any aides to former Democratic President Barack Obama acted improperly, the sources said, but they do indicate some Trump associates may have violated an obscure 1799 law, the Logan Act, which prohibits unauthorized U.S. citizens from negotiating with a foreign government that has a dispute with the U.S. The spying reports also are relevant to the investigation by special counsel Robert Mueller into conclusions by U.S. intelligence agencies that Russia worked to tilt the election in Trump's favor.

STATES SUE OVER TRUMP ACTION ON 'DREAMERS'

4 California and three other states sued President Donald Trump's administration over his decision to end protections for people brought to the United States illegally as children, the latest bid by Democratic state attorneys general to salvage the policy. California Attorney General Xavier Becerra said Trump's move to rescind the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program that protected these immigrants from deportation and gave them work permits would be "an economic travesty" for the most populous U.S. state, which depends on immigrant labor. Minnesota, Maryland and Maine joined California in filing the lawsuit in federal court in San Francisco. Trump last week said he would end the program, which was created in 2012 by his Democratic predecessor Barack Obama, effective in March.

IVY LEAGUE GRADUATE CROWNED MISS AMERICA

5 An Ivy League graduate and national dance champion from North Dakota was crowned Miss America on Sunday, becoming the first contestant from the state to win the nearly 100-year-old contest. Cara Mund, from Bismarck, a graduate of Brown University in Rhode Island, who has been accepted to Notre Dame's law school, trained for several summers with the world-famous Rockettes. Mund, 23, was one of 51 contestants in the pageant, representing the 50 United States and the District of Columbia. Mund, who adopted the Make-a-Wish foundation which benefits children with life-threatening conditions as her platform for the competition, performed a jazz dance to "The Way You Make Me Feel" for the contest's talent portion, wearing a double-breasted black mini-dress with a matching fedora-type hat.

Bill would fine those who wrongly say their pets are service dogs

Those in the service dog industry will gather at the Massachusetts State House on Tuesday for a hearing about the issue.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

A bill aims to crack down on fake service dogs, and trainers of such animals will gather at the Massachusetts State House on Tuesday for a hearing.

For those who have certain disabilities, service dogs are an essential part of life and need to be with them everywhere they go. While any dog owner surely feels the same way, the reality is different and pets aren't always welcome in the same spaces as service animals.

However, some pet owners reportedly pose their animals as "service dogs" so they can reap the benefits of keeping their animals by their side.

The hearing will focus on a bill from Rep. Kimberly N. Ferguson of Holden that would impose a fine for anyone who wrongly implies that a pet is a service dog "in order to obtain the rights and privileges reserved for those disabled individuals working as part of a legitimate service dog team."

Teams from NEADS World Class Service Dogs, a Massachusetts-based nonprofit that has trained more than 1,700 service dogs, will gather at the State House.

"The passage of this bill is extremely important to our clients, as well as to all individuals with disabilities that face ongoing challenges because of the problem, and now proliferation of fake service dogs gaining public access," NEADS CEO Gerry DeRoche said in a statement.

Fake service dogs have been reported in various scenarios, according to NEADS, including people who buy their own "vest and credentials" for their dog to misrepresent their service dog status.

The #1 Men's Sex Problem is NOT What You Think

This aggravating, less-often talked about "performance issue" is causing sexual frustration for millions of men and their partners across the country.

Derrick Blum
Associated Health Press

AHS, San Diego – As men age, sexual performance hang-ups become standard.

For many men, keeping an erection to enjoy sex is their big struggle issue.

If you're like the rest of us guys over 50, you probably already know the truth ... Prescription ED pills may work, but they don't solve all the problems in the bedroom and they are very expensive.

Dr. Bassam Damaj, chief scientific officer at the world famous Innovus Pharma Laboratories, explains, "As we get older, we need more help in bed."

"Not only does our desire fade; but erections can be soft or feeble, one of the main complaints with prescription pills. Besides, they're expensive... costing as much as $50.00 each."

Plus, it does nothing to stimulate your brain to want sex. "I don't care what you take; if you aren't interested in sex, you can't get or keep an erection. It's physiologically impossible and require visual and mental stimulation," said Dr. Damaj.

MADE JUST FOR MEN OVER 50

But now, for the first time ever, there's a pill made just for older men. It's called Vesele®. A new pill that helps you in bed by stimulating your body and your brainwaves. So Vesele® can work in a completely different way.

JAW-DROPPING CLINICAL PROOF

	Vesele	Baseline
Overall Satisfaction	88.1%	41.4%
Frequency of sex	79.5%	44.9%
Desire for sex	82%	47.9%
Hardness during sex	85.7%	36.2%
Duration of erection	79.5%	35%
Ability to satisfy	83.3%	44.1%

The new men's pill is not a drug. It's something completely different.

Because you don't need a prescription for Vesele®, sales are exploding. The maker just can't produce enough of it to keep up with demand. Even doctors are calling the company for samples. So what's all the fuss about?

WORKS ON YOUR MIND AND YOUR BODY

The new formula takes on erectile problems with a whole new twist. It doesn't just address the physical problems of getting older; it works on the mental part of sex too. Unlike the expensive prescriptions, the new pill stimulates your sexual brain chemistry as well, actually helping you regain the passion and burning desire you had for your partner again. So you will want sex with the hunger and stamina of a 25-year-old.

THE BRAIN CONNECTION

Vesele® takes off where Viagra® only begins. Thanks to arginine discovery made by 3 Nobel-Prize winning scientists, Vesele® has become the first ever patented supplement to harden you and your libido. So you regain your desire as well as the ability to act on it.

In a 14-week clinical study, scientists from the U.S.A. joined forces to prove Nitric Oxide's effects on the cardio vascular system. They showed that Nitric Oxide could not only increase your ability to get an erection, it would also help your brainwaves to get stimulated.

THE SCIENCE

The study asked men, 45 to 65 years old to take the main ingredient in Vesele® once a day. Then they were instructed not to change the way they eat or exercise but to take Vesele® twice a day. What happened next was remarkable. Virtually every man in the study who took Vesele® twice a day reported a huge difference in their desire for sex. In layman's terms, they were horny again. They also experienced harder and stronger erections.

AN UNEXPECTED BONUS: The study results even showed an impressive increase in the energy, brain-power and memory of the participants.

SUPPLY LIMITED BY OVERWHELMING DEMAND

"Once we saw the results we knew we had a game-changer said Dr. Damaj. We get hundreds of calls a day from people begging us for a bottle. It's been crazy. We try to meet the crushing demand for Vesele®."

New men's pill overwhelms your senses with sexual desire as well as firmer, long-lasting erections. There's never been anything like it before.

VESELE® PASSED THE TEST

"As an expert in the development of sexual dysfunction drugs such as Vitaros and others, I've studied the effectiveness of Nitric Oxide on the body and the brain. I'm impressed by the way it increases cerebral and penile blood flow. The result is evident in the creation of Vesele®. It's sure-fire proof that the mind/body connection is unbeatable when achieving and maintaining an erection and the results are remarkable" said Dr. Damaj.

HERE'S WHAT MEN ARE SAYING

- I'm ready to go sexually and mentally.
- More frequent erections at night and in the morning.
- I have seen a change in sexual desire.
- Typically take 1 each morning and 1 each night. Great Stamina, Great Results!
- An increased intensity in orgasms.
- My focus (mental) has really improved... Huge improvement.
- Amazing orgasms!
- I feel more confident in bed.

HOW TO GET VESELE®

This is the first official public release of Vesele® since its news release. In order to get the word out about Vesele®, Innovus Pharma is offering special introductory discounts to all who call.

A special phone hotline has been set up for readers in your area to take advantage of special discounts during this ordering opportunity. The discounts will automatically be applied to all callers. The Special TOLL-FREE Hotline number is 1-800-723-7141 and will be open 24-hours a day.

Limited bottles of Vesele® are currently available in your region. Consumers who miss out on our current product inventory will have to wait until more become available. But this could take weeks. The maker advises your best chance is to call 1-800-723-7141 early.

Prepare to be shocked: A report out of Boston University found that people who voted for Trump in the 2016 election have a lower life expectancy.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

What do we know about those who voted for President Donald Trump?

Well, his supporters may not live as long as those who voted for Hillary Clinton.

The general life expectancy rate in the United States rose by about five years between 1980 and 2016, but that increase didn't benefit all residents equally.

Some areas of the country saw no increase or even a decrease in life expectancy. According to a recent study out of Boston University, Trump voters were more likely to come from those areas.

Jacob Bor, a Boston University School of Public Health researcher, analyzed voting data from the 2008 and 2016 presidential elections as well as life-expectancy rates on the county level.

"The figures are just so stark," he said. "It really is that if life expectancy increased more than average, then by and large these counties were going for Hillary. If it increased less than average, or decreased, by in large those counties were going for Trump."

Between 2008 and 2016, Republicans lost about 67,000 votes in the counties where the life expectancy gains were above average. In the counties where the life expectancy increased by only three years or less, Republicans gained 3.1 million more votes.

There's irony here, Bor said, because the Republican party is less likely to invest in public policies like environmental regulation, occupational health and safety, health insurance for the poor.

"So what you see is see large parts of the country essentially voting for a candidate, and a party to be honest, that are proposing policies that are very likely to be detrimental to their health," he said.

3.1M

ADDITIONAL NUMBER OF VOTES REPUBLICANS RECEIVED IN COUNTIES WITH BELOW-AVERAGE LIFE EXPECTANCY GAINS

There may not be causation to the relationship, Bor admitted, and he doesn't yet know why these counties voted in this way. It could be that people don't know about the link between policy and health outcomes or even that they care about other issues more so than their own health.

This research doesn't even tell us why people voted for Trump, Bor added, but "what it does tell us is that people who did vote for Trump are hurting, not just in the economic sense which people have talked about a lot, but also hurting in a real physical sense in terms of shortened life."

The next step, he hopes, is that at a political party figures out how to address the health needs of this population, so that no one is left out of any health gains.

Kim Kardashian wants privacy

You know how Kim Kardashian reportedly has a surrogate and that surrogate is pregnant with Kardashian and Kanye West's third child?

Well, Kardashian — who profits by sharing a version of her life on "Keeping Up With the Kardashians" and also Instagram — would like some privacy now, thank you very much.

On the red carpet for Harper Bazaar's "Icons by Carine Roitfeld" event, Kardashian addressed the news of her supposed surrogate to E! News. And she's mad, y'all!

"I've definitely seen a lot of things, we've never confirmed anything," she said. "So, I think when we're ready to talk about it we will, and I think it's super invasive. ... Like whatever. We have not confirmed it, and that's that. I'll let you know when we're ready."

Damn, Kimmy!

So, you know, if we could all mind our business unless she tells us not to, that would be great. For her.

Girl, I guess.

Does Demi Lovato have a new GF?

Looks like Demi Lovato — former child actress who is 1% African — has a new girlfriend. OK!

The "Sorry Not Sorry" singer was spotted at Disneyland holding hands with DJ/Producer/certified hottie Lauren Abedini. Naturally, some nosy person took photos of them galavanting around — holding hands and each others' butts — and posted them to Twitter.

Lovato has apparently alluded to her bisexuality in the past, saying, "I am not confirming and I'm definitely not denying. ... I don't think there's anything wrong with experimentation at all." OK, girl. I see you!

Demi, if you ever listen to me, even if it's just this once, even though you don't know me and I don't have any bearing on your life whatsoever, I beg of you: Get it girl.

Get it, girl.

Mindy Kaling is having a girl

First, Oprah let slip that Mindy Kaling was several months into her pregnancy. Now, two of her co-stars on "The Mindy Project" have revealed even bigger news: Kaling is having a girl!

Beth Grant, who plays the unhinged-but-in-a-cute-way Beverly, got emotional, saying "I cried like a baby and that it's a girl. ... I'm very happy for her."

Ed Weeks, who plays the delightfully absurd Jeremy — really, "The Mindy Project" is a cast of overtly sitcom-y characters — noted that having a girl is a bit full circle for Kaling. "The show started as a tribute to her mother, who very sadly passed away just as the show is being picked up, and it ends with her having a daughter of her own. It's a lot," he explained. Aw.

Now, I'm just wondering who is going to tell us who the father is. I don't even care that much, but it feels intensely personal that Kaling isn't telling us her private business, you know?

Baby girl is having a baby girl.

And I will be ready when he is.

Peter Kraus could still be "The Bachelor"

Last week, ABC announced that the new bachelor wouldn't be hot Peter Kraus or hot Eric Bigger from "The Bachelorette," but a nobody named Arie Luyendyk Jr. A man who most certainly doesn't have the range.

Over the weekend, a cross Kraus wrote a long thesis about missing out on the opportunity via Instagram, saying "Never let fear hold you back." Deep!

No worries, though. There's still a possibility that Peter could be the Bachelor. You know, at some point in the future.

"We'll always be in touch with Peter, and there might be a time," said Rob Mills, ABC's head of reality programming. "It might be a year from now, when it's better for him."

So yeah, don't hold your breath or anything. But one day, that salt and pepper Prince Eric will come to our television screens with his roses and his cute lil' gapped teeth — and I will be there in what will likely be an ill fitting gown.

Will 'Preacher' ever live up to its potential?

We're looking back at season two after last night's finale.

RACHAEL VAUGHAN CLEMMONS
@rachaelclemz
rachael.clemmons@metro.us

From the very beginning, "Preacher" has teemed with potential. The AMC series, adapted from the popular comic book created by Garth Ennis and Steve Dillon, was brought to fruition by Seth Rogen and Evan Goldberg through sheer persistence. The pair behind hits like "Pineapple Express" and "This Is the End" had unsuccessfully pitched a "Preacher" adaptation after selling the screenplay for "Superbad." But that failure didn't manage to deter them.

"There were just a lot of iterations of it and we were always just very vocal, to our agent or whoever was around who would listen to us," Rogen said last year. "That it was something we were big fans of and that we thought we could do a good job of adapting in some way."

Well, the second season of "Preacher" — which also counts "Breaking Bad" alum Sam Catlin as a producer and showrunner — certainly proved enjoyable at times, good even. But the series is still woefully inconsistent. It never feels like it's living up to its best self. And it's a bummer.

"Preacher" is at its best when it's amping up the violence and the tenacious bond that Jesse (certified zaddy Dominic Cooper), Tulip (Ruth Negga) and ol' vampire Cass

"Preacher" is at its best when it's amping up the tenacious bond that Jesse (Dominic Cooper, above), Tulip and Cassidy share. MICHELE K. SHORT/AMC/SONY PICTURES TELEVISION

Cassidy (Joseph Gilgun) and Tulip (Ruth Negga). MICHELE K. SHORT/AMC/SONY PICTURES TELEVISION

(Joseph Gilgun) share, honoring the graphic novel from whence it came — which itself is super brash and delightfully over the top. At its worst, the series is bogged down by convoluted plotlines or unintentionally murky motivations.

Last night's finale, for example, had one or two too many bait and switches. Jesse was — then was not — being groomed as the new Messiah with a potential appearance on "Jimmy Kimmel" and a staged shoot out. The Saint of Killers' exit seemed too easy — was it part of Starr's plan all along? Sure seems like a lot of work for a little pay off. Tulip is dead, except she's probably not. And what in the actual f—k is going on with Eugene and Hitler?

The finale was admittedly as funny as the series has been in a few episodes — nobody can be as tender and aloof as Cass when he's smoking crack in the afternoon — and it capped off a disjointed season as satisfyingly as it could. Yet it still managed to leave our protagonists in a somewhat predictable place. (Like seriously, y'all. Tulip ain't dead.)

The sophomore season was a lot more self-serious at times and by the end, it was less about the adventures the trio has, and more about the machinations of their relationships with each other.

In the second half of the season, it's unclear why Cass and Tulip even hang with Jesse in the first place — he's got great hair, but he's essentially a selfish f—kboi. And it's a shame: Watching these characters crackle off of each other is one of the best parts of the series. When they're having fun, the audience is, too. Frankly, it would be enough for me to watch Cooper, Negga and Gilgun chat in a room for an hour, but I suppose that doesn't qualify as primetime television.

All in all, it still seems like the supernatural Western can't quite figure out what it wants to be — but two seasons should have been plenty of time for "Preacher" to find its footing. Here's hoping the series gets a third season — and maybe it'll finally get out of its own way.

Maggie Gyllenhaal: Trump means 'The Deuce' is more vital than ever Chatting with the stars of HBO's latest effort on misogyny, 45 and sex work.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
gregorywakeman@metro.us

Watching Maggie Gyllenhaal talk about "The Deuce," you can instantly sense the fire that made her eager to tell the story of sex workers in Times Square — a bygone era. So eager that she requested a producing credit.

"We are making a piece about pornography and about a marginalized group in our culture," Gyllenhaal said at the New York premiere for the HBO series. "Do we not tell their story? Is it better to just push it under a rock? No! It's better to respectfully, honestly, truthfully explore this group of people that I don't think very often have been honestly portrayed in TV and film."

The series, airing Sunday nights at 9 p.m. on HBO, tackles the legalization and subsequent rise of pornography in 1970s and '80s era New

Maggie Gyllenhaal as Candy in David Simon's HBO drama. HBO

York City. And Gyllenhaal — who plays a prostitute named Candy with a high level of business acumen — believes "The Deuce" has come at the right time.

"It's a really interesting time to be looking at our relationship to sex, power and our ability to make money and be thinking members of our culture," she said. "Now [that Trump] has been elected and there is a misogynist in office, I think it's an amazing time to be putting a project out that is an exploration of misogyny."

James Franco — who portrays twin brothers Vincent and Frankie Martino and is an executive producer of the series — echoed Gyllenhaal's thoughts. And he's hoping that the new series help people understand the roots of misogyny.

"[This] is a very multi-layered portrait of an industry where misogyny is deeply rooted," Franco remarked. "Hopefully it will make people more sympathetic. This show has all the right intentions and you couldn't ask for a better group to approach it head on."

"The Deuce" indeed has a terrific ensemble, which can be accredited to creator David Simon, a storied writer who has drawn widespread acclaim for the likes of "The Wire," and "Show Me a Hero." But while the cast trusted Simon and his co-creator, George Pelecanos, to create scripts that richly evoked the 1970s the pair knew it was important to get a perspective outside of their own, too.

"It was essential that we had a female director to set the template,"

Simon explained at the premiere. "In the writer's room, directors, department heads, everyone needed to be empowered. If this was the guy's version of sex work, it would have been a disaster in the making."

The team ended up tapping Michelle MacLaren — whose directing credits include episodes of "The Walking Dead," "Game of Thrones" and "Westworld" — to bring the Times Square of old to life. Her main concern? Creating an authentic world that was less about sex and more about business. "It was important to me that we weren't gratuitous or salacious, that we were authentic and raw and real," she said at the premiere. "And that was exactly what was important to David and George, as well."

Can plants make you less anxious?

wellbeing

Horticultural therapy, interaction in biophilic environments, can reduce stress and improve wellbeing.

KATE MOONEY
@yatinbrooklyn
kate.mooney@metro.us

Can keeping a plant on your desk at work help you have a better day? If you turn your apartment into a "house jungle," per the recent Washington Post trend piece on plant-loving millennials, will it improve your mental health or just makeover your Instagram feed?

Studies have shown that spending time in nature can soothe the mind, but what is the effect of bringing nature to you?

Matthew J. Wichrowski is a senior horticultural therapist at the Rusk Rehabilitation Center at NYU Langone Medical Center. Every day, he uses plants and planting exercises to help rehabilitate patient suffering from mental and physical disabilities.

Wichrowski works out of the center's plant room, where patients stop in for hour-long sessions in "plant and sensory exploration." (There are also therapy bunnies!) For those who can't leave their ward, such as epilepsy and psychiatric patients, Wichrowski wheels a cart of plants to them.

In a typical session, "we explore the sensory aspect, touch and feel, describe the leaves, the colors and flowers, fragrance, and talk about how to use them," Wichrowski explains.

Wichrowski notes that spending time in a biophilic environment has psychological benefits, including improving one's mood and decreasing stress. He describes something called "attention restoration theory," the idea that concentrating on nature can give us a sort of mental vacation and improve our ability to focus afterwards — in effect, restoring our attention.

There are physical benefits, as well. A 2005 study, which Wichrowski co-authored, published in the Journal of Cardiopulmonary Rehabilitation, found that horticultural therapy sessions led to a reduced heart rate in cardiac-rehabilitation inpatients.

There's also the psychological effect of caring for a living thing. At the end of each session, the patient selects a plant to repot and tend to him or herself, which fosters a sense of personal accomplishment and wellbeing, says Wichrowski.

Eliza Blank, the founder of The Sill, a plant room and delivery service in Manhattan, agrees that "surrounding yourself with plants is one of the most uplifting things you can do when it comes to your day-to-day emotional well-being," as she puts it.

"There's something to be said just for taking care of something, the relationship that you have. The plant depends on you for survival."

Plants can also detoxify indoor spaces, removing carcinogens in building materials and carpeting, such as formaldehyde, ammonia and

If you're a newbie to the plant world, here are Blank's suggestions for easy-to-care-for shrubs to get started with.

For low lighting

ZZ Plant: "It can basically tolerate all light levels," from a stairwell to a dark corner of your apartment, Blank explains.

Snake Plant: Also known as mother-in-law's-tongue, the evergreen perennial thrives in low lighting and requires minimal watering.

Blank notes that because both the ZZ and the Snake Plant grow vertically, they function well as space savers, ideal for a small apartment or at your desk.

For medium light

Blank fancies a purplish, waxy rubber tree. "It has a little bit of color, it's a vertical grower, I water it once a week and it has beautiful thick, glossy leaves," she says.

If you have pets and need to keep your plants up high, she suggests hanging plants such as philodendrons or spider plants.

For bright light

If you are lucky to have bright light in your home or office, go for succulents, which don't require much water.

benzene. The most well-known research into this is the 1989 NASA Clean Air Study, which studied which plants most effectively filtered the air in space stations.

DON'T THROW ENERGY DRINKS

Conor McGregor is being sued for throwing a Monster Energy drink (which are hefty) at a UFC press conference in August of 2016.

That night McGregor became agitated at members of Nate Diaz's team and is said to have hit a security guard with the drink.

According to The Blast, William Pegg claims that he was hit in the back by the can, near his left shoulder. He also claims to have originally incurred medical expenses for $5,000, in a lawsuit filed this week, but now Pegg wants McGregor to pay him $95,000. I get that healthcare costs are crazy these days, but that seems a bit steep.

If Pegg wins in court though, I will absolutely take a Red Bull off the temple from anyone who enjoys assaulting others with energy drinks.

Easy money.

PLAYOFF PRICE?

David Price is set to throw a simulated game this week after experiencing no issues while throwing two simulated innings this past Saturday.

In other words, it sure seems like Price will factor into the Red Sox' postseason plans after all.

The question now is what type of role will Price have on the Sox' staff? There are three weeks left in the regular season, so one would guess that management would give him at least one more start.

Price's best chance for contribution this October, though, may come if the Sox decide to put him in the bullpen. If he blows up immediately in a relief appearance, the Sox would instantly be able to save face by yanking him.

a pitcher early from a start is always tricky and it demoralizes a team.

The postseason is no time to mess around with a pitcher in which you're not sure if he can start or not.

'I JUST TRADED YOU'

When I first heard about The Players' Tribune, I thought we would be treated to a bunch of jock-sniffing fluff. Sure, there's some of that — but pieces like Isaiah Thomas' "This Is for Boston" essay truly makes the site a must read. We got a really good glimpse into the mindset of Celtics boss Danny Ainge, who can be cutthroat, in the Thomas piece.

Here's what Isaiah wrote of the out-of-the-blue trade phone call with Ainge: "I'm sure I asked [Danny] how he was, maybe how the family was doing. Again, you know, just that normal sort of talk. And then somewhere in there, it was just like ... it was barely anything. This little pause in the conversation. And that's when he told me.

"I just traded you." "Simple as that.

No big words, no big speech. Though I guess when it comes to s— like that, there's not much more to say."

Part of the reason I believe Ainge can get away with this blunt stuff is because he was once traded away from the Celtics himself. It's a hell of a lot easier to explain something brutal to someone else when you've been through the same crap yourself.

NEW (AND OLD) PATS RIVALS

Less than a week ago, many Patriots fans were wondering where the competition in the AFC was going to come from. Another "gripe" was "the Patriots don't really have a hated rival anymore."

One week into the season, we already have two potential rivals for the Pats. One is the Chiefs, who have blown out the Pats twice in the teams' last three meetings.

The other is the Ravens, who shut out the Bengals, 20-0, in Cincinnati on Sunday.

Baltimore's defense looks to be back at full-strength and loathed linebacker Terrell Suggs looks to finally be healthy. The Ravens remodeled their defense with an eye toward taking down Tom Brady and the Patriots, and on offense it's a sure bet that Joe Flacco is capable of replicating what Alex Smith did last Thursday night.

Right now there's too much respect on both sides between the Pats and Chiefs. The Pats and Ravens, on the other hand, don't have to create any artificial bad blood.

For entertainment purposes only, let's hope the Pats and Baltimore clash this coming January (they will not meet in the regular season).

Aries Personal matters concerning parents, siblings or friends will slow you down. Offer patience and compassion. Anger will not alleviate pressing matters. Do your best.

Taurus Don't trust someone who has let you down in the past. Picking a fight will not help you resolve issues. Stick to people you know you can count on.

Gemini Stay close to home and nurture personal relationships. Implement changes that add to your appeal. Getting along with others is in your best interest.

Cancer Rumors will roll if you divulge secrets. Respect others and demand the same in return. Avoid getting angry by not putting yourself in a precarious position to start.

Leo Don't give in to someone who wants something that belongs to you or who uses emotional manipulation for monetary gain. Arguing is a waste of time. Say no.

Virgo Emotions will be difficult to control when dealing with children, siblings or a friend who has let you down. Honesty and compassion will lead you to happiness.

Libra You'll learn from the experiences you have. Get involved in an event. Volunteer your time and energy. A physical challenge will do you good. Romance is on the rise.

Scorpio Use your intuition when dealing with investments or joint ventures. Refuse to give in to someone's charm or salesmanship. Go it alone if you have doubts. Do things your way.

Sagittarius Partnerships will undergo an adjustment. Discussions will be necessary and could cause some anger and disagreements, but in the end, you'll come up with a plan.

Capricorn Getting involved in a joint venture or a risky investment is best avoided. A personal commitment will bring you closer to someone you love.

Aquarius Think before you speak. Don't take on so much that you won't have time to spend with the people in your life who need you the most. Romance will do you good.

Pisces Partnerships will suffer if either party is not honest about how they feel and what's going on. Don't neglect to address issues that are bound to escalate. EUGENIA LAST
